Farmer Wants to Live High on the Not-Hog

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (INS). 1958

THE name of Octave Broussard assumed immortality today. It is in the Congressional Record. As long as the Record is preserved the name of Octave Broussard will live in history. Broussard wrote a letter to Sen. Barry Goldwater (R., Ariz.) as follows:

"Dear Mr. Senator:

"My friend Bordeaux over in Pima county received a $1000 check from the Government this year for not raising hogs. So I am going into the not-raising-hogs business next year.

"What I want to know is what is the best kind of farm not to raise hogs on and what is the best kind of hogs not to raise? I would prefer not to raise razorbacks, but if that is not a good breed not to raise, I will just as gladly not raise any Berkshires or Durocs . . .

"My friend Bordeaux is very joyful about the future of his business. He has been raising hogs for more than 20 years and the best he ever made was $400 until this year, when he got $1000 for not raising hogs . . .

"I plan to operate on a small scale at first, holding myself down to about 4000 hogs which means I will have $80,000.

"Now another thing: These hogs I will not raise will not eat 100,000 bushels of corn. I understand that you also pay farmers for not raising corn.

"So will you pay me anything for not raising 100,000 bushels of corn not to feed the hogs I am not raising."

Sen. Goldwater's office was asked for Broussard's address. It wasn't available. An aide to Goldwater said:

"We suspect the name is fictitious. But the Senator thought it was funny so he put it into the Record.

Goldwater, it was disclosed, also sent a copy of the letter to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson.

MRS. GAUSS DEAD; WIDOW OF DEAN

9/28/58
Former Instructor at Vassar
Had Been Aide of Husband,
Ex-Officer at Princeton

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Sept. 27—Mrs. Alice Hussey Gauss, widow of Dr. Christian Gauss, Dean Emeritus of Princeton University, died last night at a hospital here after a long illness. She was 86 years old.

After graduating from Vassar College in 1894, Mrs. Gauss taught school in San Francisco. She received a master's degree from the University of Michigan in 1899 and then taught in Indianapolis until 1901.

After spending a year on the faculty of Vassar, she was married to Dr. Gauss in 1902. He was then a professor at Lehigh University. In 1906 he was called to Princeton by Woodrow Wilson to be a preceptor. He later became head of the language department.

Mrs. Gauss, who was proficient in several languages, translated, with her husband, Bainville's "Histoire de France" in 1925. She later taught herself shorthand and typing to be able to transcribe Dr. Gauss' lectures and articles.

Donald A. Stauffer, in an essay in the American Scholar in 1948, said of Mrs. Gauss:

"She has made herself part of her husband's life and his accomplishment. It does not seem to me prejudiced to call her one of the great ladies of America, except that such a phrase might not suggest the warmth and balance of her personality—sympathy and understanding without sentimentality."

Dr. Gauss died in 1951.

Mrs. Gauss leaves three daughters, Mrs. Andrew Jackson, Mrs. Douglas Steimle and Mrs. George Stephenson, all of New York; a son, D. Christian Gauss of New Canaan, Conn., and four grandchildren.

JULIEN CHAQUENEAU, PERFUME EXECUTIVE

Julien St. Charles Chaqueneau of 115 East Sixty-ninth Street, president of Chaqueneau, Inc., a perfume concern, died Saturday in Acapulco, Mexico, where he had been staying during the winter. He was 60 years old.

Mr. Chaqueneau was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Julien Shackno of Brooklyn and a grandson of Walter McQueen, a founder of the American Locomotive Works. Members of the family say that Shackno is an Americanization of the French name Chaqueneau.

As Julien Shackno, he married Miss Adelaide Kip Rhineland in November, 1922. Their wedding was a brilliant social event of that season here. They went to Paris to live, and it was there that Mr. Chaqueneau changed the spelling of his name.

This marriage ended in divorce in 1928. Three years later Mr. Chaqueneau married Miss Katherine Leslie. He was a member of the Racquet and Tennis Club here.

Surviving are his widow and a daughter by his first marriage. Miss Adelaide Rhineland Chaqueneau.
